NATIONAL WEBINAR ON ENTREPRENEURSHIP DEVELOPMENT AND EMPLOYABILITY WITH VERMI-TECHNOLOGY, CELEBRATING ONE YEAR OF NEP-2020 ON 3RD AUGUST, 2021

About Webinar

Employment is about getting a job and employability is about having a good mix of skills, competencies, and attitudes to successfully perform on the job. Employability is a necessary attribute; employees look for those skills while recruiting candidates for jobs. The recent education reforms emphasize on the importance of developing employability skills among students by schools and institutions of higher education. Youth unemployment is on the rise across the world. The global unemployment among youth is more than 200 million and is expected to increase to 212 million by 2019. According to International Labor Organization (ILO) estimates, which take into account new labor market entrants, an additional 280 million jobs need to be created to close the global employment gap by the end of this decade. More importantly, a good share (45%) of the additional job seekers in this decade may be in the East and South Asia regions. In India, increasing unemployment of the educated is accompanied by a widening job-skill mismatch and declining labor force participation rates, especially among women. The youth population in India is expected to increase to 350 million by 2022. According to the latest NSSO data, the unemployment rate increases with increasing levels of education till the postgraduate levels of education. The peak point in unemployment rates has been shifted from the secondary level to the university degree level.

Under the guidance and patronship of Honorable Vice Chancellor Prof. Amarika Singh, Laboratory of Public Health Entomology, Department of Zoology, MLS University, Udaipur organized a National Webinar on Entrepreneurship Development and Employability with Vermi-technology, Celebrating One Year of NEP-2020 on 3rd August, 2021. Speaker Dr. Anand Singh Jodha (Head of the Department of Horticulture, Rajasthan Vidyapeeth) gave detailed information about Vermitechnology to the participants. He told that today we have land available for cultivation, but we are not able to do crop rotation today, due to which the soil does not get time for the rotation of nutrients and to increase production we are using chemical fertilizers in more quantity. Which are proving fatal for us. Villages located around Udaipur city where vegetables are grown from drain water have about 24% zinc which is a heavy element and can cause cancer in future. He said that with the use of vermiculture, we can improve the health of the soil and from that we can move towards good quality organic farming. He said that work is being done on vermicompost in Krishi Vigyan Kendra and Agricultural University, but Zoology Department is the first department of science where work is being done on it by giving so much importance to vermicompost. During the program, Prof. Arti Prasad informed the participants about the career hub and training programs being started very soon by the department and the work being done by the department in the field of computer technology. At the end of the program, Dr. Devendra Kumar expressed his gratitude to the speakers, students and participants through his speech. About 85 participants have participated in this webinar. Prof. Arti Prasad expressed her sincere gratitude to honorable Vice chancellor for his support and blessings. She also extended gratitude to all dignitaries for their valuable contribution and all students for their active participation.

BLENDED MODE (OFFLINE-CUM-ONLINE)

Qualitative research usually emphasize on words and images rather than quantification. Hence researchers generally find difficulty to analyse the research data. Knowledge and its application is essential for a researcher. Qualitative research involves collecting and analyzing non-numerical data (e.g., text, video, or audio) to understand concepts, opinions, or experiences. It can be used to gather in-depth insights into a problem or generate new ideas for research. Quantitative research methods can be used to determine how many people undertake particular behaviours, qualitative methods can help researchers to understand how and why such behaviours take place. In keeping of this fact the present workshop is being scheduled. Theoretical as well as practical sessions have been arranged on Qualitative Research. Practical session will be explained with software.

CONCEPT NOTE

The Internet in today's life has brought incredible changes especially to the academic and research arena. Its drastic effect on the creation, organization, accession, and dissemination of information is remarkable. A huge number of students and researcher scholars are seeking to the Internet for readymade solutions and easily assessable material for compiling their research outputs such as assignments, research papers and thesis.

Nevertheless the building blocks of academic and scholarly works are the elements like ethics and integrity, innovative and genuine ideas and theories that are created, confirmed and re-confirmed. To serve this objective higher education universities promote authors with new idea, theories, and formulas and facilitate them through experiments, field work and other research methods. They produce highly skilled and competent graduates with high standards of honesty, ethics and professionalism to serve the communities.

These personnel deserve due credit and acknowledgement. In same regard Copyright is one of the very important intellectual properties which gives the author of any creative work an exclusive right to reproduce the work in any form. Copyright is a right given under the law to the creators of literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works and producers of cinematograph films and sound recordings. The copyright law encourages authors, composers and artists to create original works by rewarding them with the exclusive right for a limited period to reproduce the work for the benefit of the public.

But with the advancement of technology the threat to the violation of copyright is also increasing. The easy accessibility of information has made the infringement also easy. Plagiarism which is an act of fraud involves both stealing someone else's work and lying about it afterward. Plagiarism in academic and research institutions is an old but ever growing problem. The exponential growth in scholarly publications makes it harder for faculty and instructor to detect the plagiarized sources. Plagiarism can be a very serious form of ethical misconduct. For this reason, the concept of plagiarism is universally addressed in all scholarly, artistic, and scientific disciplines.
