About National Seminar

COMMON SENSE:

NEITHER COMMON NOR SENSE IN TODAY'S TIME

Common sense is defined as a good sense, giving us sound judgment in practical matters. It is the ability to think and behave in a reasonable way and to make a good decision. It is considered that common sense is the knowledge that humans should have. Common sense ability involves all the common sense knowledge and the observation of the world to decide what to do to live life.

Common sense is such a general word that it is always considered as granted to have in an individual but nowadays it is not so common that it is found in all but it has become so special that it is available in some of the adult population. Youths and adolescents are so lacking in this.
